Crowned arms; GLORIAM REGNI TVI DICENT, a turret above and m.m. A for Paris, below. Uncirculated, with a few drift marks on hair. By far the finest and rarest French Colonial coin, alike of the highest interest to American and Canadian collectors. Limited at $325.

About four years ago I was fortunate enough to obtain two specimens of the GLORIAM REGNI fourth crown through the kind offices of an energetic French dealer in Paris. One in good condition, but scratched, being offered in my 21st sale, May 5, 1882, was bought at $125 by a Canadian collector, who, I understand, has since then sold it to the Dominion Government, to be placed in the Ottawa collection. The second one (now offered) was sold to a New York collector, who subsequently resold it, at a considerable advance, to the Hon. Geo. M. Parsons, in whose collection it has since remained. Beside these two specimens, one of which is now entirely beyond the reach of collectors, it is absolutely certain that none have ever been offered here, and it is questionable if more will again make their appearance on this side of the Atlantic, the only two known being in the cabinets of wealthy Frenchmen, who estimate their value at about 5000 francs each, and who under no circumstances would part with pieces which they consider to be the very gems of their cabinets.

This coin has been repeatedly described here, notably by the late Professor Charles E. Anthon, and by R. W. McLachlan, Esq., of Montreal, but it is perhaps fortunate that I am able at this time to add the confirming testimony of Monsieur E. Zay, a member of the French Numismatic Society. This gentleman in a series of articles on French Colonial Coins, published in the REVUE NUMISMATIQUE, gives a verbatim copy of the Ordinance of Louis XIV, issued in February 1670, by which the coinage of twelfth and fourth crowns for "the islands and mainland of America" was decreed. This ordinance specifies that the obverse shall be similar to the French issues of the same denominations, while the rev. shall bear the legend GLORIAM REGNI TVI DICENT, etc. By the same authority we are also able to renew the statement that the Gloriam Regni ¼ crown is not in the French National Collection.

461 The same. 1670. Twelfth crown, of the same type as last. Uncirculated; extremely rare.

462 1670. Twelfth crown, the product of another pair of dies. Extremely fine.

463 The same. 1690. Silver medal. Bust r. by Mauger. Rev. France seated on a rock; a beaver at her feet, Neptune to r., etc.; FRANCIA IN NOVO ORBE VICTRIX; in exergue KEBECA LIBERATA and date, argent on edge, proof. 26.

464 — Another; bronze on edge. Proof.

465 Louis XV. 1720. Colonial gold écu of 36 livres. Youthful bust laureate r.; LUD. XV. D. G. FR. ET NAV. REX. Rev. Two L's back to back crowned, three lilies in the field: CHRISTUS REGNAT, VINCIT, IMPERAT, m.m. W for Lille, engrailed edge. Uncirculated and extremely rare.

The only specimen heretofore offered here, was the one in my own collection, Oct. 2, 3, last, bought by Mr. W. E. Woodward for $16. It was repurchased by me on an order at one of his late sales at a considerable advance.

466 The same. 1723. Colonial gold demi écu of 18 livres, same type as last. Extremely fine; the first offered here.

470 The same. 1758. Silver medal for victories in four quarters of the world. Bust laureate r.; LVDOVICVO XV ORBIS IMPERATOR. Rev. Four forts flying the French flag; WESEL, OSWEGO (State of New York), PORTMAHON; in exergue. EXPUG S^TE DAVIDIS ARCE ET SOLO AEQUATA. Much has been said, and perhaps more imagined, about the restriking of the French-American jetons at the French mint. The facts are, that beyond the one obv. and seven rev. dies described here as restrikes, no other varieties or combinations were issued, and this obv. die having been condemned, the issue has stopped and none can now be obtained. This set in silver, sold by me to Mr. P. 2 years ago, and another in copper sold in one of my sales, are all I ever obtained there, all others offered by me having been obtained from other sources, at very high prices.
